Jaap Scholten has over 30 years' experience in ICT, predominantly wide area networking, and has headed up eNetworks Internet Service Provider since 2003. eNetworks became a wholly-owned subsidiary of Datacentrix in 2013.

Jaap translates business requirements into technology-driven solutions, spanning industries ranging from medical through agriculture and retail to manufacturing, education and insurance. Ever exploring the frontiers of new technologies, Jaap strongly believes in the principle that technology must work for the business, and not the other way around. Using this principle, he picks out relevant technologies to architect solutions that have a meaningful contribution to solving the problem at hand.
