at Datacentrix

Linked in

Rudie is the Head of Security at Datacentrix. He takes leadership in strategic initiatives in cyber security, digital transformation, cloud adoption and managed services.

Rudie works with customers and partners at a global level as a leader in all aspects of new and emerging technologies to meet client objectives. His broad experience in global projects, data centre transformation, application modernisation, next-gen solutions, multi-cloud workloads, security models underpinned by compliance and governance frameworks, and in general big disruptive IT industry trends, sets him apart from his peers in the local industry.

He regularly contributes to multi-disciplinary teams of senior enterprise architects, business consultants and subject matter experts to define strategic solutions to complex business problems.
